(PFE) and U.S. shares of BioNTech SE (BNTX) rose in the extended session Friday following reports that the drug makers will likely get full Food and Drug Administration approval for their COVID-19 vaccine sometime next week. Pfizer shares rose more than 2% after hours, following a 0.2% decline to close at $48.72, and BioNTech's ADRs rallied more than 5%, following a 5.1% gain to close at $348.68. Late Friday, The Wall Street Journal and The New York Times reported that the FDA could approve the vaccine, which up until now has been distributed on an emergency basis, as early as Monday but could possibly go past that if regulators need more time to review data.Here's some really good news: More Americans have a cool $1 million or more in their retirement accounts than ever before. The Boston-based investment giant says the number of 401(k) accounts with seven-figure balances swelled 84% in the 12 months ended June 30 to 412,000, while the number of seven-figure IRAs jumped more than 64% to 341,600. I am still unable to qualify for any sort of loan required to purchase a home here and would likely have to pay cash for any home I purchase.Vaccine stocks rallied on Friday after health officials said the U.S. would expand coronavirus vaccine manufacturing. "We are now working on greatly expanding the capacity to allow us to donate hundreds and hundreds of millions of doses to the low- and middle-income countries," Dr. Anthony Fauci said during an interview on CNBC. Scientists have debated the merits of making a third dose of Moderna's and BioNTech's COVID-19 vaccines available when many people around the world have yet to receive a single shot.Tiffany Hsiao, Managing Director & Portfolio Manager at Artisan Partners, joins Yahoo Finance Live to discuss regulatory risks in China after a new data privacy law was passed.Shares of cloud-based data storage and analytics service provider Snowflake (NYSE: SNOW) are falling today, down by 8% as of 11:30 a.m. EDT. You can probably blame investment firm Cleveland Research for that. As StreetInsider.com reports today, Cleveland Research counseled caution over Snowflake stock this morning, warning that Snowflake's partners "are seeing sales cycles elongate on increased competition from hyperscalers," and that Alphabet's BigQuery cloud data warehouse may be Snowflake's biggest competition.The stocks of some electric vehicle makers reversed recent declines on Friday with sharp jumps. Shares of hydrogen fuel cell electric truck makers Nikola (NASDAQ: NKLA) and Hyzon Motors (NASDAQ: HYZN) were up between 8% and 11% at the highs of the day today.If you want to see the benefits of saving early for your retirement and saving with regularity, look no further than the latest report from 401(k) giant Fidelity Investments. The average 401(k) account now has a record balance of $129,300, the company says. Fidelity calculates that even millennials who've held their 401(k)s for at least 15 years now have an average balance of just under $280,000.Alibaba stock just made fresh new lows, falling down to levels not seen in 2 years. The stock is now dipping to a price-to-earnings ratio below 20, which is hard to imagine for an internet retailer in 2020. We will take a look at the shareholder structure and see what it can tell us about the current state of the company.Investors should ignore Elon Musk's latest dance and focus instead on the growing issues Tesla is facing because of its chief executive's outlandish claims about his company's technological capabilities.General Motors Co said on Friday it would take a hit of $1 billion to expand the recall of its Chevrolet Bolt electric vehicles due to the risk of fires from the high-voltage battery pack - a blow for the largest U.S. automaker as it seeks to ramp up EV sales. "The reserves and ratio of cost to the recall will be decided depending on the result of the joint investigation looking into the root cause, currently being held by GM, LG Electronics and LG Energy Solution," LG said in a statement, referring to its subsidiaries. GM shares were down 2.2% in after-hours trade after dipping 0.6% during Friday's regular session.In this article, we will be taking a look at the 10 best dividend stocks with over 5% yield according to hedge funds. Investors seemed impressed by Cisco's second straight quarter of year-over-year revenue growth (which followed a five-quarter streak of revenue declines) as well as its rosy outlook for fiscal 2022.Technology stocks have been instrumental in the bull market that followed the coronavirus bear market almost 18 months ago. Today, a couple of tech stocks stood out from the crowd, with Nvidia (NASDAQ: NVDA) posting big gains while Snowflake (NYSE: SNOW) fell. Shares of Nvidia were up more than 5% on Friday, adding to gains from earlier in the week.Investor's Business DailySoftware giant Microsoft has earned plaudits for its successful pivot from desktop computing to cloud computing. Many investors may be wondering: Is Microsoft stock a buy right now? By Sara Williams i radio image by Claudio Calcagno from Fotolia.com Radio stations, like newspapers, have taken to the Internet in a big way. Creating an online radio station of your own is simple and inexpensive to start with, and it is not just for streaming music. Integrating a radio station into your website is simple when using a plug-in. Start out by planning your new radio station. Ask yourself questions such as, "What will I play?" and "What size audience do I expect?" Radio formats come in music or talk, each with its ups and downs. Talk radio requires a microphone and some idea of what you will talk about, but there are far less legal concerns associated with it than music. Do not plan for playing music to which you do not have rights, permission, or licensing to play. Some streaming services pay royalties for you, as part of your service through them, although they may not be appropriate for streaming directly from your website. As for audience size, be aware that as it grows, the stream will become more costly to run. Sign up for a stream hosting account. For radio stations, the best bitrates are between 64kbps and 128kbps for decent quality audio streaming. To create a radio station that runs on auto-pilot, choose a stream hosting package that includes disk space for hosting your audio files. These packages cost a few dollars more per month but are worth it if you want to run a twenty-four hour a day radio station on your own. If you do not already have Winamp on your computer, download and install it. ShoutCast, a popular tool for streaming audio on the Web, requires Winamp and a special plug-in to broadcast. Once Winamp is installed, grab the ShoutCast DSP plug-in from the ShoutCast website. Close Winamp if it is already running, and then start the installer for the plug-in. Start Winamp and hit "Ctrl+P" to bring up the Preferences menu. Choose "DSP/Effect" under "Plugins" and configure the ShoutCast plug-in with your stream information. Purchase an inexpensive Web hosting account with a domain name and the third-party application installer Fantastico, which will install WordPress for you with only a few simple steps. Log-in and click on the Fantastico icon, and then choose WordPress. This blogging system is also a powerful content management system (CMS) that allows for easy plug-in installation, and that will come in useful when integrating your radio station. Log in to your WordPress admin dashboard. To change WordPress from a blog into a CMS with a static front page, click "Pages" on the right-hand menu and add a new page. Name the new page "Blog" and then go to "Settings" on the right-hand menu. From there, go to "Reading" and set WordPress to use a static front page. Use the automatically created "About" page for the front page and "Blog" for the blog page. Now, your site can have a blog, but it will not be the first page visitors see when surfing to your website. Go to "Permalinks" under "Settings" and choose a permalink structure other than the default. Doing this gives every page made within WordPress its own semantic name rather than numbers. Go to "Plugins" on the right-hand menu and click "add plugin." Search for "shoutcast" and look at the list of plug-ins for streaming radio on your website. Install "Shout Stream" and activate. Click on "Settings" and go to "Shout Stream" for that plug-in's settings page. Fill in the form with information about your radio stream so that the widget can connect to it. Go to "Appearance" and then "Widgets" to click and drag the "Shout Stream" widget into your sidebar. Now when you visit your site, you will see a radio player in your sidebar. Click on it and play!
