[3 Disney + streaming service] Three films were not pre alert scheduled for release in 2023, while Without warning films were expected to be released in 2024. Development Kevin Feige helped helped Of a shared multimedia universe of Marvel property. In 2005, Marvel Entertainment had started planning to produce their films independently and distribute them through Paramount images. [4] In June 2007, Marvel Studios has collected funding guaranteed by a seven-year-old revolving credit service, $ 525 million with Merrill Lynch. [5] Marvel's plan had to release individual films for their main characters and then found them in a Crossover movie. [6] In November 2013, Marvel Studios Head Kevin Feige said that "In an ideal world" releases every year would include a film based on an existing character and one with a new character, saying that it is "a nice rhythm" in That format. While not always the case, as evident from the 2013 Iron Man 3 releases and Thor: The Dark World, he said he is "certainly something to aim." [7] Feige expanded this in July 2014, saying: "I don't know that we will continue to [that model] every year, but we're doing it in 2014 and 2015, so I think it would be fun to continue to continue species of what". [8] After the revelation of multiple release dates for movies until 2019 in July 2014, [9] in which some have had three filmed films, Feide said that there was no "cruncher number" that said the study to increase their film production, but rather it concerned "managing existing franchise [existing], film films, and when we have a team ready to go, because they say they go away for four years just because we don't have a slot? We'd rather Finding a way to keep it going. "[10] After the titles were revealed in October 2014, [11] said feige," the studio shoots on all the cylinders right now ... that he did it Convenient for the first time ... increase to three films a year [in 2017 and 2018] instead of only two, without modifying our methods. "[12] To the potential for" superhero fatigue ", said feige, although Each of the films are based on Marvel's comics and present "Marvel Studios" logo, believed to OG Ni movies had their own distinctions to help them differentiate them from other MCU films and superhero. For example, he noticed how the 2016 studio releases, Captain America: the civil war and the strange doctor, were "two completely different films". The study hoped to continue surprising the public and make sure that the study was "not to fall into things that became too similar". [13] In February 2014, Feige said Marvel Studios wants to imitate the "rhythm" that comics developed, having the characters appear in their films, and then gather, just like "a great event or a series of crossovers ". [14] With Avengers films acting as" big, linchpins giants ". [15] To the expansion of the characters in the universe and let the individual films breathe and work alone, unlike having an Avenger team-up outside Avengers' films, said feige, it is "teaching the General public of the film about the notion of existing characters separately, which come together for specific events and leave and existing separately in their worlds again. Just like comedians readers have done for decades and decades ... people are accepting that there is Only a time when they should be together and there is a moment when they are not. "[16] In April 2016, on shifting the universe to phase four and reflecting the first three, he said Feige," I think That there will be a finality at phase three moments, as well as new beginnings that mark a different chapter, very different, a distinctly different chapter in what one day will be a first full saga composed of three phases ". Frequent Director Joe Russo added step three was the "deconstruction phase" of the MCU, starting with Captain America: Civil War (2016) leading to "The Films "by Avengers: Infinity War (2018) and Avengers: Endgame (2019). [17] A year later, Feige felt after the conclusion of phase three, Marvel could abandon the grouping of phases movies, saying:" It could be A new thing ". [18] Feige said that Avengers: Endgame would provide" a definitive end "to films and Previous, with the franchise with "two distinct periods, all before [endgame] and all after". [19] In July 2019, Feige announced the four slate phase in San Diego Comic-with, composed of films and series of television events on Disney +. [20] In December 2020, a day of the Disney investor, Marvel Studios has provided movie updates previously announced for the phase. [21] [22] On how much history it is developed for future films of the universe, he said Feige in September 2015 there are "extensive traits" although sometimes "things à €
