Instagram has been the internet's favorite photo-sharing social media platform since its launch in 2010. More than 95 million photos are uploaded to Instagram every day, so maybe you're just a little curious as to whether you can see who views your Instagram posts, Story, or profile. Here's what you should know about what you can track and how to see who viewed your Instagram posts... Can You See Who Views Your Instagram? Instagram is pretty lean on details about who views your profile and content. As such, it's not surprising that questions like, "can you see who viewed your Instagram post?" are quite popular. To some extent, it's possible to see who viewed your Instagram photos and videos—but this only really applies to Stories. Unfortunately, the app doesn't have this same function for regular photo and video posts. As such, you can't see who views your Instagram photos or videos posted in your feed unless they've liked it or left a comment. However, you can see how many views a video post has. If you own a business account on Instagram, you can also see the number of visitors you had in the past few weeks or how many users saw your content in their feed. But you cannot view the list of usernames. Regular posts are limited to information on who liked your photo and commented on the post. How to See Who Viewed Your Instagram Story So now that you know that you can see who views your Instagram Story during the day, how can you access this information in the app? You just need to follow these steps: Open your Story by tapping Your Story at the top left. Swipe up on the screen. You'll see the number of people and account usernames of those who have viewed each photo or video in your Story. Only you are able to see this information. If your Story has expired (it's been more than 24 hours since you posted it), you can check who has seen it up to 48 hours after it went up. To do this, go to your profile. Then follow these steps: Tap the icon with three horizontal lines in the top right. Tap Archive. If you aren't already on the Stories Archive page, tap the title at the top of the screen to open the dropdown menu. Select Stories Archive. Tap the Story you want to check, and either swipe up on the screen or tap the icon at the bottom left. The number of Story views includes replays. You may see a higher number of views than usernames if the same account has viewed your Story more than once. If you're trying to get more eyes on your content, there are some things you can try to get more views on your Instagram Stories. How to See How Many Views Your Instagram Video Has You can check how many views your Instagram videos have, making them different from regular photo posts, which only show likes. However, if you want, you can hide the number of likes, views, and comments, you'll also see the number of shares and saves. Instagram also displays the number of accounts reached by the post and the impact it had on your profile in terms of visits and new follows. Are There Any Third-Party Apps That Let You See Who Viewed Your Instagram Profile? When your favorite apps don't have the function you wish they had built-in, what do you do? Some folks might go on a quick search for an alternative in the form of third-party apps. Don't be fooled by any applications that make this claim. In an article in Reader's Digest, Alex Heid of SecurityScorecard notes: "Anything advertising a feature that shows who viewed your profile would not be a legitimate service and should be avoided as it is likely just an app that is there to collect data for those who use it." Instagram was acquired by Facebook in 2016, so it makes sense that there is some overlap between them. They have similar privacy settings, and you can't see who has viewed your Facebook profile, either. Instagram Lets You See Some Details on Who Viewed Your Content Maybe Instagram will consider adding something in the future to allow users to see who has viewed their photos. But in the meantime, the most you can do is keep an eye on who keeps tabs on your Stories and how well the videos on your feed do. Something went wrong. Wait a moment and try again. Scrolling through Instagram can be good inspiration for everything from selfie captions to fashion choices thanks to friends, family, and influencers with likable photos. You might even be that inspiration for someone else. Whether people view your profile out of nosiness or admiration, is it possible to see who views your Instagram profile? Can you see who views your Instagram profile? Instagram doesn't allow users to see who views their profile. So if you look through someone's profile and don't like or comment on a post, there's no way for them to know who sees the pictures. "Similar to Facebook, users are unable to see who has viewed their profiles regardless of the type of profile they own: personal, business, or creator," says Reggie Azevedo Filho, who works for the social media management platform Traject Social (here's how to block someone on Facebook Messenger, by the way). This goes for both users with accounts and people without accounts who use the web to browse Instagram publicly. Instagram Business accounts will display stats about the volume of traffic but doesn't show specific profile information, according to Alex Heid, Chief Research and Development Officer at SecurityScorecard. Business accounts specifically show the number of who people visited your profile in the past seven days, or how many people saw your posts in their feed, according to an Instagram representative. Here's what it means to restrict someone on Instagram. How to see who views your Instagram stories If you share more Instagram stories than posts, you'll have better luck finding out who's viewing your content. Users who view stories appear in a "viewers list" for 24 hours after the story is live for the original poster to see. "This grants you insights into the specific audience members who have viewed your photo, video, or story post for the same period of time your post is active," Azevedo says. After 24 hours, the list disappears, but if you save your stories, you can still see the number of people who saw them (and who). You must be logged in to see this information. By the way, here's how to see who unfollows you on Facebook. Is there a third-party app that lets me see who views my Instagram profile? Facebook acquired Instagram in 2012, so there's some overlap in privacy settings. So, like Facebook, no third-party apps will tell you who looks at your Instagram profile. "Anything advertising a feature that shows who viewed your profile would not be a legitimate service and should be avoided as it is likely just an app that is there to collect data for those who use it," Heid says. There's no indication that Instagram will ever decide to allow users to see who views their profile. Next, learn how to tell if someone blocked you on Instagram. Sources: SOPA Images/Getty Images rd.com, Getty Images Tero Vesalainen/Shutterstock Originally Published: July 13, 2021 Instagram is one of the most widely used social media platforms these days, with over a billion monthly active users logging on daily to check out images/videos posted by the friends, family or their favorite celebrities. While there is a large population of Instagram users who post stuff on the daily, there are quite a few who just lurk around without posting all that much or use the platform as a means to stalk other users. If you're an avid Instagrammer with a public profile, it's quite likely that you've wondered 'Can I see who views my Instagram profile?' more often than you'd like to admit. So, how does one track who views their Instagram account? Can you keep a tab on your Insta stalker? Lets find out. How to See Who Views Your Instagram Profile (2022) Well, to be precise, there isn't any straightforward way for you to check who views your Instagram page. Instagram doesn't have an in-built feature to let users check who's viewed their profile and there's a very good reason behind that – user privacy. Facebook-owned Instagram has all the data you'd need to check who viewed your profile, but it won't share it with you because that could lead to a significant drop in user engagement on the platform. Why, you ask? Well, since a significant number of Instagram users spend their time just checking out other profiles without posting anything on their own profile, if Instagram releases data regarding their activity, there's a very high chance that they'll stop using the app as much, which is definitely bad for business. Even though these users don't engage with other people on Instagram, they still consume the same number of ads as everyone else and if they're called out for their activity they might stop using the platform altogether. Using Third-Party Apps to See Who Viewed Your Instagram Profile So are there any third-party apps you could use to see who viewed your Instagram profile? Yes, there are an absolute ton of apps, both on the App Store and the Play Store, that will have you believe that you can see who views your Instagram account and find your Insta stalkers by giving them access to your Instagram account. But, do they work? Definitely not. 1. SocialView for Instagram SocialView for Instagram is one of the iPhone apps that claims it can show you who viewed your Instagram profile. However, if you go through the reviews on the app's page, you will find that it actually doesn't work. 2. Profile+ Profile+ is another app that says it can show you who views your Instagram profile. However, this app doesn't work either. In fact, it tries to make you pay to unlock features such as 'who viewed my Instagram profile' even though it won't work. The app simply shows a list of users you have blocked, which is something you can see on the official Instagram app anyway. 3. Follower Analyzer for Instagram Follower Analyzer is another app that claims it can show you who views your Instagram profile, when in reality it doesn't do anything of the sort. These apps just pretend to work and show a list of random Instagram usernames which keep changing every time you open the apps to make users feel that they're doing something. More importantly, these apps run the risk of being a major privacy threat as they collect all your account data as soon as you log in with your Instagram account and give them access to the data. What's more, you can even have your account banned by using such apps, so it's better to not rely on third party apps to see your Instagram stalkers. Why Don't Third Party Apps Work? The most damning reason behind why these apps don't work is quite straightforward. Instagram's data policy clearly states that it only shares a user's name, Instagram username and bio, profile photo and email address with third-party apps that have not been vetted by the company. Additionally, Instagram's Graph API, which was introduced earlier this year, is much more restrictive than the older Instagram API platform, which means that apps that haven't been approved by Instagram to use the API lose the ability to access the API altogether. So, now that third-party apps are out of the question, how can you see who viewed your Instagram profile? Note: There are a lot of scammers out there who claim that they can tell you who has viewed your Instagram profile in exchange for money, or sometimes by asking for your account credentials. Beware of such fake claims, and don't pay random people money with the hopes of gaining access to information that Instagram simply doesn't let anyone see. Using Instagram Stories/Highlights to See Who Views Your Instagram Profile Even though Instagram doesn't give users access to a feature with which they can check who's visiting their profiles, it does have one that allows users to see who all viewed their Stories and Highlights. The feature can, therefore, be used to check who all have recently visited your profile. In order to make use of this feature to reveal your Insta stalkers all you need to do is tap on the profile picture icons lined up in the bottom left corner of your recent Instagram Stories. This will bring up a list of all the users who've checked out your story, including users who don't follow you. This feature will also let you block any users who you don't want to share your Stories with by tapping on the menu button to the right of the user's name and selecting the 'Hide Story' option, so you can easily block any Instagram stalkers you may have. Since Instagram Stories expire after 24 hours, you'll have to check the list on a daily basis (in case you upload that often). But if you want to get a long term overview of who's been visiting your Instagram profile, you can check the same list on your Highlights, which also displays a list of all the users who've visited your profile (provided they played the Highlights). Using Instagram Business Accounts to See Who Views You Instagram Profile You can also see who viewed your Instagram profile by making use of an Instagram business account. Having an Instagram business account will give you access to important information about who's been visiting your Instagram page but there's a catch. With a business account you'll be able to access valuable insights about the users visiting your profile, including their location, age range, gender, and the time that they're online. However, the insights won't reveal the names of all the individual users who've visited your profile. If that's the kind of data you're interested in, you can easily convert your personal Instagram account into a business account. To do so, you'll have to navigate to the Instagram Settings and tap on the 'Switch to Business Profile' option, then connect your Instagram account to a Facebook Page that you administrate. Instagram will then prompt you to choose which contact information you wish to pull from your Facebook page as Instagram business accounts require users to have at least one contact info. Your new Instagram business account is now good to go. It's worth noting that Instagram Insights don't pull historical data and starts collecting data only after the Instagram business account is set up. How to Make Your Instagram Account Private Now that we've explored all the ways in which you can see who views your Instagram profile, lets talk about how you can prevent someone from viewing your profile. The answer is quite simple. You can prevent unknown users from checking out your Instagram by making your profile private. To convert your Instagram profile from public to private, you'll need to navigate to the settings menu in the Instagram app and toggle the 'Private Account' option. It's as easy as that. Do note that switching to a private account won't have any affect on your existing followers, so you'll need to weed out unwanted followers or Insta stalkers individually after converting to a private account. So Can You See Who Views Your Instagram Profile? So, if you've been wondering whether you can see who viewed your Instagram profile, well, you can't. The only workaround, which involves checking who's viewed your Instagram Stories and Highlights, isn't accurate as it only shows all the users who viewed your Stories or Highlights and doesn't account for all the users who went through the posts on your timeline. Third-party apps, as I've already explained, are no good and using them is definitely a waste of your time and money. In case you want more information about the users visiting your profile and can do without getting their names, then you can also convert your personal account to a business account. And finally, if not knowing who's visiting your Instagram ID bothers you all that much, you can switch to a private account.
